BULLOCH COUNTY—
THE HEART OF GEORGIA.
"WHERE NATURE SMILES."

Bulloch Times, Established 1892
Statesboro News, Established 1901
Statesboro Eagle, Established 1917—Consolidated December 9, 1920.

GEORGIA REVENUE
OFF FOR YEAR 1932

TOTAL AMOUNT DUE FROM COUNTIES NEARLY OFFSETS
DECLINE FROM 1931 TOTAL

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Total receipts of the state of Georgia for the year 1932, were $20,591,228.54, compared to $22,386,108.97 in 1931, a loss of $1,794,880.03, according to a report on the comptroller general's office filed with Governor Talmadge Saturday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom.

Property values on the digesta for state taxation decreased $131,006,784 in 1932, representing decreased tax charges amounting to $659,534, the auditor pointed out.

Balances due to the state by county tax collectors on December 31, 1932, subject to adjustment in final settlements, were listed at $1,117,304. On the total tax digesta amounting to $955,043,023, the sum of $435,211.445 was represented by city property and $245,591,045 by improved farm lands. The total assessment of property was $4,675,215, against public service corporations, $1,044,196.

Of the governmental costs paid by the comptroller general, the sum of $204,408 was paid out in commissions and fees. County tax collectors were paid $97,949, county tax receivers, $84,890, and special tax auditors received $20,779. The principal payments to these special tax auditors were $933 to M. M. Stephenson, candidate for comptroller general in the last campaign; $64,409 to M. L. Dudson; $4,788 to R. P. Christian and $14,419 to A. L. Henson, now head of the state pension department.

WEEVIL CONTROL VERY IMPORTANT

PROPER APPLICATION OF POISON IS SUREST WAY TO PROTECT COTTON CROP.

Experiment, Ga., June 16.—The boll weevil must be controlled in Georgia this year if a normal cotton crop is to be made. G. A. Hale, assistant agronomist of the Georgia Experiment Station, stated here today. The past winter, Mr. Hale said, has been favorable for the greatest of all menaces to cotton growing in the state.

Cotton growers are urged by Mr. Hale to take action. The most successful and practical methods of fighting the boll weevil under Georgia conditions he lists as follows: Indirect control measures include such cultural practices as planting cotton in large fields not surrounded by woods, early and thorough seed bed preparation, application of early planting of a quick fruiting variety, leaving the plants thick in the row or two or three stalks a hoe's width apart and frequent enough cultivation to kill weeds and grass. These methods, Mr. Hale says, will pay every year regardless of insect pests.

Direct control measures include picking off and destroying punctured bolls and poisoning the plants just before or at the time the first squares appear will usually pay. The calcium arsenate dust should be applied at the rate of two or three pounds per acre when no wind is blowing. The dusting may be done by shaking the dust on each plant with a fertilizer bag or other porous cloth. Man and mule-powered mechanical dusters are on the market. Many growers prefer to use a liquid mixture made by mixing together one gallon of cheap molasses, one gallon of water and one or two pounds of calcium arsenate. The fresh mixture is applied to the terminal bud of each plant by using a mop made by tying a piece of cloth on the end of a stick. Usually one to three person applications at about five-day intervals in the tops of the plants as the first squares begin to appear will kill most of the overwintering weevils.

Only the calcium arsenate dust should be used for later applications. The poison should be put on with a mechanical duster when about ten out of every 100 squares examined have been punctured. From five to seven pounds of dust per acre applied at five to ten day intervals will keep weevils in check so that the plants can fruit. The time of doing the dusting and the number of applications necessary will depend on the local conditions but two to four dustings will generally be sufficient.

Close observation and timely use of poison are essential for success in controlling the boll weevil, Mr. Hale says.

SOUND BANKS FIRST OFFICIALS DECLARE

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—The best achievement of the recent state banking convention in Macon is the avowed policy adopted by the Georgia Country Bankers Association of encouraging the people of the state along sound banking lines, country bank officials stated here this week.

The recent investigation of the House of Morgan plus the Harriman failure and the Mitchell investigation have made the people distrustful of the man who should be the most trustworthy citizen of any community, officials said.

Also the Georgia Country Bankers Association will fight for the preservation of the individual bank because the association believes that the interests of the people are best served by local men who are in intimate touch with local conditions. Public opinion is shying away from the hidden figure in the central office of a large banking system, for people are demanding that they know and be given the facts about their bankers. The Georgia Country Bankers Association believes that personal trust is engendered by personal relationship between banker and depositor.

In Czechoslovakia either men or women who fail to vote without an excuse are penalized by fine or imprisonment.

Starting on a trip with 8,200 pennies, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Lumbeck, of Oquawka, Ill., returned 12 days later with 3,700 pennies, after visiting 125 towns.

Underweight Children

Need More Iron in Their Blood!

Children who are thin and pale and who lack appetite are usually suffering from a deficiency of iron. When the blood lacks iron it becomes thin and poor and fails to nourish. Then a child loses appetite and becomes still thinner and weaker—and easy prey to disease! To build up your child, give him Groves' Tasteless Chilli Tonic. It contains iron which makes for rich, red blood. It also contains tasteless quinine which tends to purify the blood. These two effects make it an exceptional medicine for young and old. A few days on Groves' Tasteless Chilli Tonic will work wonders in your child. It will sharpen his appetite, improve his color and build up his strength. Indirect control measures include such cultural practices as planting cotton in large fields not surrounded by woods, early and thorough seed bed preparation, application of early planting of a quick fruiting variety, leaving the plants thick in the row or two or three stalks a hoe's width apart and frequent enough cultivation to kill weeds and grass. These methods, Mr. Hale says, will pay every year regardless of insect pests.

SLATS' DIARY

By Ross Farquhar.

Friday—When pa seen my report Card today with the teacher sent home for him to look it over he kinda grinned seriously and said Sunny it looks like you must be in having a great deal of Minus trouble at school. I guess that was his joke for today.

Saturday—Jake and the Blitters are in all over such a thing as the 12 month Calendar because they would probably be just 1 more month of school and that would mean 1 more month of Report to get balled out and us kids has it tuff enuff as it is now.

Sunday—ma wanted pa to take she and Ant Emmy and I to the museum up to the city today as she had heard they had sum new Gargols they was exhibiting to the on lookers and Ant Emmy was anxious to go because she sed she was very tired of using these common mouth Warshes they advertise on the Raydees.

Munday—well the way New York brags about her self it looks like she would have had the Decoration of Independence since there. I am off to sorry they dident since it there because Thats where I sed it was sined in the histry lesson & if that anser had of ben right I woodent of got a 0 for my Grade.

Tuesday—pa says the noose paper where he works at has got a grate peace of news for the people he sed that they have had 4 people working on it and they can't find where they was a single solitary Bridge game in town this week.

Wednesday—well I guess I will get to stay up late tonite and hear a grate radio program with cums on at 11 a clock. I have tyed both of my shoe strings into Hard notes and it will take me a long time to get them untied. even if I shud try.

Thursday—well I don't no weather I am lucky or teacher is giving me a brake. I question she ant was please Define Allamney and I sed, Give up, and she sed Yes thats rite.

Fort Benning Boys Appreciate Jobs

Fort Benning, Ga., June 4, 1933.

Editor Bullock Times, Statesboro, Ga.

The boys want to thank the committee for selecting us to go to camp, and we are going to show our appreciation by doing good work. We are in the 142nd Company, C. C. Co. Our company commander is Captain Albright. Lieutenant Woolnough and Sergeant White, of the regular army, are with us. They are the best in Fort Benning.

We have plenty to eat and it is prepared by Sergeant Abbitton, a mess sergeant who knows his stuff. We have tents, blankets and cots. For amusement we have boxing, wrestling and vaudeville.

Yours respectfully,
JOEL W. LINNEY.

COUNTY AGENT

Community Cannery Now Operating
The community cannery situated at the milk house on the campus of the South Georgia Teachers College is now running on each Tuesday and Thursday. This cannery plant was put here for the benefit of the rural people of Bulloch county and will be operated for that purpose.

Farmers who have a large quantity of products that they desire processed in this plant are advised to let us know a day or so before they expect to bring these vegetables in. It would perhaps, be best to bring these products in and then prepare them at the plant. Since it is necessary to process fruits in glass or enamel cans, in this plant are these products be canned at home.

The cannery will specialize in processing beans, corn, butterbeans, greens, tomatoes, squash and soup mixtures. In selecting these products for canning, only the best in quality should be prepared.

Clubsters Preparing for Camp

Plans for the state and county 4-H Club camps are now being developed in this office and in Athens. In all probability Bulloch county clubsters that attend the state camp will be carried to Tifton this year instead of Camp Wilkins as in the past. However, this point has not been settled.

No definite date has been set for the county camp, but it will no doubt be held at the South Georgia Teachers College. President Wells has invited 300 boys and girls to attend the camp at the college. There is a possibility of the clubsters having a small camp in connection with the Boy Scouts on Lake Wells for this summer training.

During the last series of club meetings it was revealed that these clubsters are looking forward to the fall barrow show and sale in the early fall. Many of the clubsters are interested in pushing their corn for county, state and national prizes.

To Make Application for College Entrance

Bulloch county farm boys that have finished high school and desire two years of college training preparatory for returning to the farm and entering the business of farming are requested to make applications immediately. The Abraham Baldwin College, Tifton, is an institution set up for this purpose by the Board of Regents of the University System of Georgia. It will cost around $250 to complete a two-year course in this new type of college.

Boys and girls studying in the Abraham Baldwin College will first go into the fields around Tifton and on the experiment station plots and find the conditions that really exist and then go to the laboratory to make a technical study of these conditions. Very few text books will be used in this college.

E. P. JOSEY, County Agent.

Many Responding In Patrons Drive

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Encouraging response is being received to invitations sent out by the Georgia Bi-Centennial Commission to prominent Georgians and friends of the state to become members of the exclusive "Patrons' Committee of 200" which is sponsoring the state-wide celebration.

The exchange, which is in charge of Mrs. R. M. Barnes, as manager, handles only articles bearing a "Made in Georgia" label. Any persons having such articles are invited to send them to Mrs. Barnes.

Mr. LeCraw also extended an invitation to manufacturers and business men generally and boards of trade throughout Georgia to send in exhibits for the Forward Georgia Exposition which is to be continued indefinitely. Efforts are being made to perfect an exhibit which will give an accurate cross-section picture of Georgia, both agricultural and industrial, and no charge is made for exhibit space. Everything suitable for display on Georgia agricultural and industrial life is desired.

Mr. LeCraw is seeking not only to get material for the exhibit, but to secure literature about various sections of Georgia to be used in answering inquiries from tourists and other visitors to the exposition. Already a large number of manufacturers have taken advantage of the invitation to have exhibits. The invitation to Georgians generally to participate is extended regardless of locality, since efforts are being made to have every section of the state adequately represented.

Inquiries and exhibits should be addressed to Ted Toddy, public relations director for Columbia Pictures, who is in charge of the Forward Georgia Exposition.

In his divorce suit, James C. Courten, of Cincinnati testified that his wife had her hair bobbed because she was "too lazy to raise her arms to dress it."

ATLANTA BANKERS SEE IMPROVEMENT

RESTORED CONFIDENCE SAID TO BE KEYNOTE OF RECENT MEETINGS OF BANKERS.

Marked improvement in the economic situation in Georgia and the rest of the south is noted by officers of the First National Bank of Atlanta, after attending financial conferences in various parts of the country.

Based on reports of its officers who have attended a number of conferences, and who had personal interviews with bankers and industrial leaders from many parts of the country, the bank's statement indicates that a better psychological outlook is prevailing and that business generally is on the upturn.

Completely restored confidence has been the keynote of bank conventions, First National officers reported, and meetings of various other organizations have reported a more widespread optimism. The First National Bank is the oldest and one of the largest national banks in the south and optimistic reports coming from such a conservative financial institution are considered highly significant.

Cotton mill executives in the south are filling more orders than in several years, according to James D. Robinson, executive vice-president of the First National. Mr. Robinson attended the annual convention of cotton textile manufacturers at Pinehurst, N. C., recently and reported that many mills are running overtime, that a large number have increased their number of spindles. The First National keeps in particularly close touch with the textile situation due to the fact that it numbers among its customers mills representing more than one-half of the active spindles in Georgia.

Recognition of the ability and popularity of officers of the First National Bank was shown in the election held by the various southern bank organizations. J. Freeman Strickland, special representative of the First National, was elected treasurer of the Georgia Bankers' Association at its annual convention in Macon last week, and J. Sherrard Kennedy, vice-president of the First National, was elected a member of the board of directors of the Reserve City Bankers' Association at its conference in Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Mr. Strickland talked with bankers from nearly every section of Georgia while Mr. Kennedy interviewed leading financiers from the large financial centers who attended the convention in Missouri. At both conventions financiers of the United States attended, and, according to reports of First National officers, these men predicted a strong upward trend in business.

Farmers' Exchange In New Location

Atlanta, Ga., June 10.—Announcement is made by Roy LeCraw, president of Forward Georgia, Inc., that the Farmers' Exchange has been moved from 92 Popular street to the location of the Forward Georgia Exposition on the ground floor of the Volunteer Building, at the corner of Forsyth and Luckie streets.

The exchange, which is in charge of Mrs. R. M. Barnes, as manager, handles only articles bearing a "Made in Georgia" label. Any persons having such articles are invited to send them to Mrs. Barnes.

Mr. LeCraw also extended an invitation to manufacturers and business men generally and boards of trade throughout Georgia to send in exhibits for the Forward Georgia Exposition which is to be continued indefinitely. ## M'RAE IS SEEKING PECAN AGREEMENT

Atlanta, Ga., June 11.—Organization of the nation's whole pecan industry under the trade agreement provisions of the agricultural adjustment act was proposed today by Max L. McRae, director of the Georgia state bureau of markets.

He said he had sent telegrams and letters to the agricultural departments of all the producing states inviting them to be represented at a meeting here or at some other convenient point within the next ten days to discuss the plan.

Should a trade agreement plan be approved at that meeting, the proposal would be laid before the United States Department of Agriculture for approval, and later before the industry as a whole.

Members of McRae's staff said the pecan industry was peculiarly fitted for easy application of the trade agreement law by reason of having little import competition. Last year's production of the nuts was given as approximately 73,000,000 pounds, the bulk of which came from Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana, with large quantities of seedling pecans from Texas, Oklahoma and other states.

McRae's announcement of the plan followed a conference here today with a committee representing Georgia growers and distributors.

"Since 1931," the Georgia market director said, "the pecan industry has been offering to the trade more pecans than the trade would accept. Many factors have tended to create this situation. Increased production has been one of them, but in the main it is the disturbing factor. The trouble is largely due to lack of coordination in accumulating and selling pecans. Other factors have been adverse economic conditions and poor quality of nuts, which have forced down prices."

Hart County Ready For Big Festival

Hartwell, Ga., June 12.—All plans have been completed for the celebration by Hart county of the 200th anniversary of the founding of the colony of Georgia by General James Edward Oglethorpe, it was announced today. The observance will be held here on July 1, featured by a mammoth home-coming at old Camp Meeting Ground near here. Camps have been provided for those who desire them, it was said.

The home-coming Bi-Centennial celebration will include such features as old-fashioned singing, prayer-meeting, dinner on the ground, and a pageant to be staged in the afternoon.

WE HAD COMPANY AT OUR HOUSE

Our daughter, a co-ed who gets her sheep-head next week, fetched a bunch of her co-ed (girl) friends home with her last week and to spend that end with her and us. There were only 8 of them including her.

I don't think I ever before saw 7 prettier girls than these 8 girls were and are. They were made up of all types, natural blonds, hand-made blonds, brunettes, lasses-c-and-y, slightly red, black and brown, but as my old lady kept one eye skint at me all the time, I didn't enjoy their visit as much as I was entitled to.

They have a way at colleges of nick-naming everybody and this crowd was no exception. Elizabeth is called Lum; Rosa answers to the name of Lumb; Marion comes when somebody calls Rick; Bessie is Bitch; while Lizzie is lovingly pointed out as Tiny, but our girl, whose name is Mary E. is known as Brit, and Frances bears the name of Arctic.

Not wishing to run the risk of losing their money while cavorting around during this visit, they turned their cash over to my wife and the grand total of the 8 amounted to exactly 51 cents—all of which they treasured when they were getting ready to return to the place where brains are petted and patted into constructive and instructive grey-matter.

Each of these girls had sweethearts that trailed them to our house. The week-end guests arrived at 5:05 p. m., but the boys didn't show up until nearly 6:30 p. m., and when I say those boys were dolled up, I mean dolled up. They wore collars and coats

Another guy blowed in not long ago and wanted me to cash his check for $10.00 and hold it for 3 weeks—to await the arrival of his bonus money. I informed him that we did not cash checks and that we had no connection with the Salvation Army and then he asked me if I thought he was a fool, and as he weighed 250 pounds, I told him, "No, you ain't no fool; you wouldn't be asking us to cash your check if you had good sense." That's the way some of us are.

Along came No. 3. He told me that I was too high. I informed him that I was only 5-foot 8, and he said that he meant my prices, and I stated politely that I had not sent for him and then he wanted to know what cotton was going to do this fall, and I explained to him that cotton was possibly going to be ginned this fall as usual and he flew up and asked me if I was born that-a-way, and I asked what he. He left in a huff.

No. 4 was more considerate. She wanted 5 pounds of guano (for her peony bed) which she suggested that we sweep up from our warehouse floor and send it over to her house only 29 blocks away, but explained that it must not be sent till 3:45 p. m. the next day, as she was going to have company, and then she told me to send the bill to her husband who works at a filling station 3 miles out of town and that he would pay the bill Saturday week. Then I told her that we didn't sell guano in large quantities.

I liked No. 5 fine. She was a blond, pretty and nice, and everything. Was from Tennessee. Business girl working her way through Vanderbilt. Sparkling eyes, white chest and puckered lips. Selling space (advertising) in a booklet that was being gotten up by the Humane Society for the Advancement of the Rights of the Bumble Bee. I tried to beg her to excuse me but she finally got my dollar. Her hands were so soft and tender and I always did like her type. I never expect to see my "ail" or her face or my dollar.

No. 6 was selling matches, carloads only. I explained that we had nearly a car of matches in stock, but he tried to convince me that Mr. Hoover was going to cut down all of the match trees. I begged him to change his politics as it was Mr. Roosevelt who was doing the cutting. He felt like matches would be 2 dollars higher. Stems were getting mighty scarce, but inflation was coming. He left in 3 hours with no order. He was a match for me all right.

ALL IN A DAY'S WORK
Folks are funny things. A man came into our place the other day and asked: "Have you any sugar?" I replied: "Yes," and he shot back at me: "That's too darned heavy," I shot back at him: "Is that so? Why, I ain't even priced it to you yet." He bought 5 sacks and 12 dozen fruit jars and 10 bushels of corn meal. He sells his stuff cheap by the quart.

NORTH GEORGIA RILED.

It has been stated in the papers that there exists in certain sections of North Georgia a mild resentment against the board of regents because of the recent announcement discontinuing a number of state schools, most of which were in the northern part of the state.

It is said that North Georgia feels that in this action she has been discriminated against. It is difficult to believe that this feeling exists among fair-minded people who know the educational conditions. For years so many that one can hardly realize it, North and Middle Georgia have enjoyed practically a monopoly of the educational privileges provided by the state. This condition has been looked upon as a matter which could not be presented by South Georgians, and their neighbors to the north had grown to regard it as their right which none should question.

A survey of the educational conditions in the state, even since the action of the regents in eliminating those schools which they believed most equitably dispensed with, reveals that a very much larger percentage of the state college is north of the center of the state. True the larger amount of the funding was done in that part of the state where there was the most shrubbery. The regents were justified in the assumption that those communities which had most colleges, could best afford to lose them. If South Georgia lost less than North Georgia, it was because South Georgia had so much less than North Georgia.

They say North Georgia is riled at the action of the regents. We wonder if that is the truth.

MUSCLE SHOALS

A writer to the correspondence columns of the New York Sun recently raised some interesting questions as to the constitutionality of government electric developments at Muscle Shoals and the attendant area, in competition with privately owned plants now serving the same area.

His objections are based on three propositions: First, has the government the right to enter into the business of commercial manufacturing? Second, has it the right to invest money for a purpose not involving the general welfare, but only the debatable welfare of a small part of the nation? Third, has it the right to go into a state and arrogate to itself a franchise to perform a monopolistic service when the state has permitted to give such a franchise to a privately-financed company which relies on protection of its charter for its very existence?

The writer to the Sun believes that the answer to all of these is No. No power is given in the constitution to enable the government to enter a manufacturing business—and many constitutional commentators hold that unless such a power is specifically given, it was meant to be withheld. As to the second proposition, both Hamilton and Madison, "fathers" of American governmental practice, defined the general welfare as being served only by activities which really are general, not local. As to the third, it is apparent that if the federal government is to be permitted to go into monopolistic business without a charter, at the expense of that part of the public which has provided existing facilities for the same purpose, individual property rights have less protection than we always believed.

Whether these objections would stand up in the supreme court—where they will doubtless be eventually decided—is a moot question now. But, irrespective of the law, they serve to point out the dangers of a precedent that competitive commercial operation of Muscle Shoals by the government will create.

Two thousand applications have been made for license to sell beer in Boston. Somehow or other we never supposed that plebeian beer and effects Boston would have so much in common.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH

There is one important danger in state or federal efforts to aid farmers through price control—that the farmers will expect too much.

It is possible, for example, for a state to decree that the price of all cheese sold within its borders shall be raised on a certain day by three cents a pound. This is done and immediately a multitude of other problems follow. The questions of export and import, the attitude of other producers—these are matters no regulatory authority can control simply by edict.

Nor can legislators repeal the law of supply and demand, pleasant as that would be. In the long run, improvement in the financial condition of agriculture must come through developing the farm producing and selling structure in accordance with inexorable economic laws. And in this work, the farmer's greatest ally is not government, but his own co-operative organization. Made up of himself and his neighbors and co-workers, his co-operative has his own immediate interest at heart and is, as well, building for a sound and permanently prosperous future. It belongs to him and is responsive to his will and his needs, and not to political pressure.

The more active interest government takes in farming, the greater will be the need for producer organizations. The stronger such organizations are, the more influential they will be—and the better their chance of protecting the farmer from unwise political action, and directing government measures into really worthwhile channels.

No, the farmer must expect too much from government. It will do its best, but its best can be greatly aided by strong co-operatives.

A REVOLUTION IN POLICY

The administration's railroad program lays especial stress on lessening railroad costs by eliminating duplication of service, and consolidating lines serving more or less the same area. A step of this kind will doubtless do much good. But along with it there must be a program to solve the greatest of all railroad problems—iniquitous competition from other forms of commercial transport. There are three such forms of importance:

First, trucks, which, operating on the public highways and being comparatively free from regulation, have been able to certain classes and hauls to cut the rates of the railroads, which must pay heavy taxes, build and maintain their own rights of way, and are subjected to severe federal regulation.

Second, the buses, which have had similar effect on the railroad passenger business, and for similar reasons.

Third, the waterways, which are built and subsidized by the government. Low rates are made possible by the fact that the user of the waterways pay but part—and sometimes a small part—of the cost of transporting his goods. Any balance is passed on to the taxpayers in the form of a deficit which is paid out of the public treasury.

There is, of course, more to the railroad problem than this, but few will deny that government-subsidized, half-regulated competition is gradually throttling the life of the greatest single industry. In the interest of the worker, the investor, the farmer, and business in general, there must be a revolution in our transportation policy.

Petition Supports Governor in Stand

Milledgeville, Ga., June 10.—A petition endorsing Governor Talma for his action in citing the public service commission to show cause why they should not be removed from office and asking that the members of the commission be removed without delay or ceremony was being circulated here by C. B. McCullar, local attorney, and others.

"If you will remove the entire commission without exception, in our opinion, it will be the greatest act for the common people of this state that you can do while governor," the petition read.

A number of names have been placed on the petition and the people interested said they would appear before the governor and insist that the commissioners be removed.

FARM PRODUCTS LEADING RISE

New York, June 10.—Farm prices, falling more rapidly than other prices, likewise have outdistanced all other groups on the upside since the forward movement started some three months ago.

Here's how prices have advanced in the various commodity groups since the low point of the depression in February:

Farm products—28.4 per cent.
Hides and leather—16.7 per cent.
Foods—12.3 per cent.
Textiles—10.8 per cent.
Metals—9.9 per cent.
Building materials—2.3 per cent.
All commodities—6 per cent.

Besides the obvious good consequences of improving prices, economists and financial observers find further reason for optimism in the way the different groups have reacted. First, the rise in farm prices is correcting the disparity which placed farm prices disproportionately below other prices; second, the rapid improvement in hides and leather prices is taking the bite out of the deflation which the back of the depression has been broken—hide and leather prices have headed upward first at the end of other depressions, and the gains have occurred without any actual inflation.

This latter fact is used by proponents both of inflation and deflation as justification of their stands. Inflationists argue that prices were forced up by fear that money was going to be worthless and that therefore money should be turned into goods.

Deflationists, admitting that this fear was partly responsible for the gain, insist that the gain would have held, and will not hold, unless justified by other factors, such as business improvement and governmental plans for the future.

All prices are still low on the average, and the disparity between farm products and other groups has not yet been evened.

The government's announced plans provide for efforts to bring further increases by processes ranging from currency inflation, restriction of production, to the more indirect methods of encouraging business recovery and thus increasing the demand for goods.

Chevrolet Output Shows Big Increase

With a total output of 68,538 new cars and trucks in May, the Chevrolet Motor Company is the first firm in the industry to show a month's production in excess of 60,000 units.

The May figure of 68,538 units compares with 50,672 in the corresponding month last year, an increase of 35 per cent, and with 50,953 in April, the month preceding the Chevrolet executive.

He said that from the first of this year through May 31st his company had built 276,877 new cars and trucks, or in excess of 37,000 over the same five months last year; this despite the interrupted schedules during the March bank holiday. Production for every month this year for the domestic market exceeded the corresponding months of 1932, he said, with the widest margin of gain over last year occurring in May.

Plant operations have continued at an accelerated pace into June, Mr. Knudsen said, with prospects that the month will compare much more favorably with May than did June last year, when federal excise taxes sharply curtailed sales during the latter part of the month, an adverse effect continuing through the summer and early fall.

With no artificial barrier to sales in immediate prospect, the industry as a whole should show a comparatively small seasonal decline during the coming months, and should compare much more favorably with last year during the last half than it has so far into 1933, Mr. Knudsen observed.

Legion to Sponsor Bi-Centennial Fete

Albany, June 12.—Under auspices of the American Legion of Dougherty county, the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of Georgia's founding will be held in this city on July 4, it was announced today. One of the larger features of the program will be a sham-battle, to be staged at night, while during the day a barbeque and melon-cutting have been arranged.

Georgia Housewives Prepare Foodstuff

Athens, Ga., June 4.—An intensive home canning campaign for Georgia, to opening June 15, and continue at least through July 15, has been announced by the Georgia agricultural extension service through Miss Susan Mathews, extension nutritionist.

An effort will be made, Miss Mathews says, to increase the amount of home canned foods at least 40 per cent. According to estimates made by this service, in 1932, over 13,000 women in the various home demonstration clubs in the state canned 2,215,782 quarts of fruits and vegetables for home use during the winter, but this amount provided only 60 per cent of the canned foods for an adequate diet by these 13,000 families during the winter when fresh fruits and vegetables are not readily available. The goal of a 40 per cent increase is to insure an adequate diet in winter during this period of economic stress.

It has been shown from the records of the county home demonstration agents, says Miss Mathews, that in 1932 those families who canned food for winter not only provided a better diet but kept at home $443,156 which otherwise would have been spent for food. In 1933 if these same families can an adequate supply of food for winter, over $730,000 will be added to their incomes.

"In every county in the state where extension work in agriculture and home economics is being carried on," Miss Mathews says, "a schedule of demonstrations in canning has been planned so that any homemaker desiring to know how to save the surplus food from her garden and orchard may attend. These demonstrations will offer an excellent opportunity for families to learn how to provide a pantry of canned food for winter at a very low cost."

County home demonstration agents and county agents will give or sponsor these demonstrations, assisted by Miss Lurline Collier, Miss Mathews and by district supervisors of agricultural extension work.

The agricultural extension service is the pioneer advocate of home planning in Georgia, having begun with tomato canning clubs as far back as 1911.

Higher Priced Cotton Predicted by Adams

Cotton at 15c by January 1 is the prediction made by Georgia's commissioner of agriculture, G. C. Adams, according to a recent dispatch from Atlanta. Having already gone a long way in the direction of this year's low point, confidence that the new crop will bring materially higher prices seems justified by the outlook for generally higher commodity price levels.

To that view is shared by many farmers is indicated by their efforts to insure high yields on their cotton acreage. Thus far, the side-dressing season has seen a demand for Chilean soda unequalled since Old Man Depression took charge. This in itself augurs better things for the South almost invariably the activity of one leading farmers reliability indicates what is immediately ahead.

Economists have been advising that now is the time to exchange money for commodities, and in the case of soda, which is far cheaper than ever before, the exchange will be doubly beneficial to farmers who use it to side-dress cotton and corn. In this connection, it is reported that on 3,414 field scale demonstrations, each dollar invested in natural Chilean soda for side-dressing cotton brought back $4.78, and for corn, $3.37. The results of these demonstrations, carried on over a period of years, under the supervision of county agents and vocational instructors, amply substantiate the judgment and expectations back of the investments now being made in cotton and corn side-dressing.

New Stamps Ready For Postmasters

Atlanta, Ga., June 12.—Four million, two hundred and thirty-nine thousand Oglethorpe commemorative stamps, first issued February 12, at Savannah, are on hand at the post-office department in Washington, Albert R. Rogers, director of the Georgia Bi-Centennial Commission, said Wednesday on his return from Washington.

These stamps will be issued to Georgia postmasters at once, Mr. Rogers said the department informed him, so that they may be used on mail originating in this state before a new two-cent letter rate, which now appears to be winning approval, is enacted into law.

PICK YOUR TRUCK from this low-priced line

the most economical you can buy

For the big majority of today's truck owners, there's no longer any question of what truck to buy. They are making their selection from Chevrolet's line—the lowest priced six-cylinder trucks on the market. And it isn't just low price that makes them choose Chevrolet. These trucks, available in three wheelbase lengths, and a big variety of body types fit practically every hauling need, cost less for gas, oil, upkeep and repairs than any other trucks you can buy. You can save with Chevrolet trucks, the most popular in the world.

GRADY DESCRIBES EVILS OF LIQUOR

ELOQUENT ORATOR'S WARNING IS RECALLED BY EXISTING CONDITIONS OVER NATION.

This week Georgia celebrates the birthday of the immortal Henry W. Grady. Perhaps no man Georgia has produced in the last hundred years left such a strong and lasting imprint upon this state and this nation as Henry W. Grady. Of him it has been said "A citizen of Atlanta, he lived in Georgia; a Georgian, he addressed the South; a Southerner, he worshipped the whole Union. He was an American in the fullest sense of that term."

Possibly more than any other man Henry W. Grady was responsible for bringing courage and co-operation out of the chaos following the civil war. It is fitting that his memory should be honored; it is appropriate at this time, when the officers of the law are flouting the prohibition laws of Georgia and the wet associations are running the show, to recall the learned and eloquent man on prohibition.

Henry W. Grady lived during the days of local option. He knew Atlanta when Atlanta was wet. His opinion is set forth in a speech in 1887 at which time a great fight was made against the licensing of saloons again in Atlanta.

This speech of Mr. Grady's serves to expose the economic fallacies as well as the moral error of the present-day wet arguments.

"My friends, hesitate before you vote liquor back into Atlanta now that it is shut out. Don't trust it. It is powerful, aggressive, and universal in its attack. Tonight, it enters a humble home to strike the roots of a woman's cheek, and tomorrow it challenges this republic in the halls of congress.

"Today it strikes the crust from the lips of a starving child, and tomorrow it strikes the heart of the government itself. There is no cottage in this city humble enough to escape it—no palace strong enough to shut it out.

"It defies the law when it cannot coerce suffrage. It is flexible to calumny, but invincible in victory. It enters the mortal enemy of peace and order. The despoiler of men, the terror of women, the demon that has dug graves and sent more souls unshriven to judgment than all the pestilences that have wasted life since God sent man to this planet, Egypt, and all the wars since Joshua stood before Jericho.

"O, my countrymen! Loving God and humanity, do not bring this grand old city again under the dominion of its return. It can profit no man by its return. It can give no industry, revive no interest, remedy no wrong. You know that it cannot. It comes to destroy and it shall profit mainly by the ruins of your sons and mine. It comes to mislead human souls and crush human hearts under its rumbling wheels.

"It comes to bring gray-haired mothers down in sorrow to their graves. It comes to turn the wife's love into despair and her pride into shame. It comes to still the laughter on the lips of little children and to stifle all the music of the home and fill it with silence and desolation.

"It comes to ruin your body and mind, to wreck your home, and it measures the duration of its prosperity by the swiftness and certainty with which it does its work."

CONE—WILLIAMS

An event of wide interest in this section of the state was the marriage on Wednesday, June 14th, of Miss Mary Agnes Cone and Everett Williams, of Statesboro, Elder Wm. H. Crouse officiating. The marriage was solemnized in the beautiful home of the bride's parents on South Main street. Mrs. Jack DeLoach, accompanied by Mrs. Gilbert Cone, gave a violin solo. Following this Miss Martha Donaldson sang, "At Dawning." To the soft strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March Miss Alma Cone, sister of the bride and her only attendant, entered alone and stood to the right of the improvised altar. The charming bride entered on the arm of her father and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Gilbert Cone. After the ceremony the guests were ushered into the dining room which was beautifully decorated with gladioli and fern and there served a delightful luncheon. The lace-covered table was centered with the bride's cake and silver service stands held lighted tapers. The bride wore a navy blue traveling suit finished at the neck line with a touch of flesh. Her hat was a close-fitting navy crepe turban with accessories to match. Her corsage was of pink rose buds and lilies of the valley.

Miss Cone, the popular young daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Cone, is a young woman of pleasing personality and unusual ability. She is a graduate of Statesboro High School and attended college at Brenau. She was a member of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Williams. He is a graduate of the Statesboro High School and attended Emory University.

Where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity. He is one of Statesboro's most successful young business men.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams left immediately after the ceremony for an extended trip through the New England states and Canada. After July 1st they will be at home to their friends in Statesboro. They will make their home on Savannah avenue.

(Editor Note.—An extended and delightful account of the foregoing wedding was received by the printer too late to be put in type for today's issue.)
